

WALLIE REID CASE AROUSES DEMAND FOR DRUG PROBE

Enactment Of More Drastic
Anti-Narcotic Laws
Is Urged.

ILLNESS MAY LEAD TO INVESTIGATION

Senator Declares Case Is "Danger Signal" To Movie World.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 19.—The truth about Hollywood—whether or not the motion picture colony is drug-ridden—must come out as an aftermath of the illness of Wallace Reid, world famed motion picture star, who is fighting for his life at a Hollywood sanitarium with a severe case of influenza, admitted to be the direct result of his curing himself of the habit of using narcotics and over-indulgence of alcoholic liquors.

The Methodist preachers of southern California today sent a plea to the Los Angeles city council asking that conditions in the film capital be investigated. If the reports that Hollywood is a drug center prove true, some adequate remedy is asked, according to the petition. On the other hand, the communication states, if the charges are false, then a complete vindication of the film world and Hollywood should be forthcoming.

As a means of investigation, the plea to the council suggested that a commission of reputable citizens be appointed and given power to call witnesses, administer oaths and make a thorough probe of the alleged conditions in Hollywood.

Danger Signal Says Senator
Washington, Dec. 19.—Enactment of more drastic anti-narcotic laws probably will result from revelations that Wallie Reid, famous motion picture star, was a slave of drugs, it was declared today in congressional circles.

The affliction of Reid was termed by Senator Shortridge, Republican, of California, in whose state the actor became addicted to drugs, as a "danger signal" to the whole movie world of the "trifling punishment inflicted by drugs."

Shortridge recommended harsher enforcement of existing laws and new federal restrictions to wipe out the drug trade throughout the nation.

The same governmental action was suggested by Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, chairman of the senate committee on education and labor. Borah frowned on federal censorship of the movies as a means of eradicating the evils of filmdom. He declared American motherhood fully capable of protecting children from undesirable films.

Sensor Myers, Democrat, of Montana who recently attacked the Hollywood movie colony from the floor of the senate, declared the Reid case indicated the need of a "clean up of undesirable characters in the movies." A bill by Myers to provide federal censorship of films in the District of Columbia is now pending before Borah's committee.

"The Reid case will focus the attention of congress on the needs of more drastic anti-drug laws," declared Shortridge. "There should also be stricter enforcement of existing laws. Reid's sudden collapse is a danger signal to the rest of the movie colony and the whole nation of the frightful punishment inflicted by these deadly drugs. The moral to be gained from his case should not be an attack on the movies but a warning to those who traffic and use deadly drugs."

The Rotary club also declared itself in favor of applying for membership in the Columbiana County Investment Service Bureau for the purpose of protecting residents of the county from questionable stocks, bonds and investments. Christmas greetings were received from the Scranton (Pa.) Rotary club and from Edgar Allen of Elyria, president of the Ohio and International Societies for Crippled Children.

Schools will resume classes again Tuesday, Jan. 2.

Salem's own disabled soldiers were not forgotten when the women's auxiliary of the American Legion packed boxes of good things to eat to be sent to military hospitals as Christmas remembrances.

Among the boxes sent was one filled with delicious sweets, fruits and nuts for Ralph Anderson of this city who is now confined to the United States Veterans hospital, No. 60, Oteen, North Carolina.

Mr. Anderson's many friends are glad to know that he is improving from a general breakdown resulting from wartime hardships.

NAMES 122 WOMEN IN DIVORCE PLEA

Charges By Pastor's Wife Throw Society Into A Panic.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 19.—Providence society was thrown into a panic today when counsel for Mrs. Minnie Engleheart, who is suing her husband, Rev. Dr. Adolph H. Engleheart, for divorce, filed a bill of particulars naming 122 women.

Mrs. Engleheart claims her husband, "pastor" of the Church of the Divine Service, has a strong hypnotic power which he uses over the women who come to him for "divine healing."

Mrs. Engleheart bases her suit on charges of extreme cruelty and her husband's association "with other women for immoral purposes."

Many of the women named in the bill of particulars are said to be members of Engleheart's church or cult and many of the others are prominent in local society.

SARAH BERNHARDT MUST LEAVE STAGE

The physicians issued a bulletin at noon saying: "The crisis is happily past, but rest is imperative. Madame Bernhardt must give up the stage and rest for a long period."

Mother In Jail, Home Sought For Children

The two children of Mrs. Mary Nimmerlilla, who have been living at the county jail since the mother was imprisoned for violation of the liquor law in Salem, were made wards of the juvenile court Monday afternoon by Judge Lodge Riddle, and an effort will be made to get them homes among the relatives and friends of the woman. There is a boy aged nine and a girl aged five, and the authorities did not deem it wise to keep them at the jail. They could not be sent to the Fairmount home for the reason that that institution is overcrowded. Mrs. Nimmerlilla is in jail for non-payment of a fine of $800.

NEED MORE SEVERE LIQUOR SENTENCES OFFICIALS BELIEVE

Combined Drive By Justice
And Treasury Heads Determined Upon.

Washington, Dec. 19.—A combined drive by the treasury and justice departments to have courts impose more severe sentences upon Volstead law violators was determined upon by officials in these two government branches today, following the conference between President Harding and governors of different states.

Both Attorney General Daugherty and Prohibition Commissioner Haynes who attended the conference, agreed today that what President Harding referred to as "national scandal" created through lax observance of the liquor laws, is partly traceable to the light penalties given offenders.

The attorney general may supplement his recent instructions to federal district attorneys relative to prohibition enforcement with orders designed to set up a closer working arrangement with the prosecuting attorneys of the different states.

Department of Justice officials endorsed the view voiced by many of the governors that greater public education in law observance is a prime necessity.

Eight Below Zero, Winona Says.

Winona still holds the record for being the most frigid locality in this section. The temperature dropped to 8 degrees below zero in that village by 9 p. m. Monday, while at 6:30 a. m. Tuesday the temperature had arisen to 5 above.

Salem came in for its share of the cold, thermometers in various parts of the city hovering between zero and five below.

Jail Doors Opened For Homeworth Man

Nick Precup of Homeworth, who had been in jail on a charge of operating a still, was released from jail Monday afternoon, some friend from Alliance having paid a part of his fine and agreeing to stand for $100 additional. Nick is to pay the last $230 of it himself. The Precup place was raided by Sheriff Gomer Lewis and deputies and a big still and a lot of corn this whiskey confiscated. The total fine imposed was $1,000, the hearing having been before Probate Judge Lorge Riddle.

800 PEOPLE ATTRACTED TO SENIOR CARNIVAL

Everything From Lollypop To Wearing Apparel Is On Display At High School Building—Many Added Attractions For The Second Night.

More than 800 people attended the Parshall, representing the student body. An even greater crowd than Monday night is expected for the final performance this evening.

The affair, sponsored by the Senior class of the school, is given for the benefit of the scholarship fund and books for the school library.

Everything from a lollypop to wearing apparel was on display for the opening night.

A huge Christmas tree covered with decorations and tiny electric lights centered the gymnasium where the main carnival was presented. Here were booths of all descriptions and catering to every taste. Twelve booths were spaced around the gymnasium, in addition to several side-shows and counter attractions.

Alumni Booth Popular

The alumni booth or postoffice was by far the most popular booth Tuesday night. Donations received from alumni of Salem High school from all parts of the country were on sale and the entire lot had been disposed of in about 20 minutes after the opening.

Candy, fancywork, groceries, fruits and wearing apparel were to be found in the various booths, all of which were attractively decorated. A gypsy fortune teller was kept busy during the entire evening gazing into the futures of those who visited her tent.

In addition to the gymnasium display several rooms of the building were required for the minstrel, vaudeville show and mystery house.

The minstrel was the hit of the evening, with good vocal numbers and humorous numbers given by the cast composed of Messrs. Ziegler, Bolen, Entrikey, Smith, Stirling, Brian and Forney.

Moby the bearded lady and Zirhoff the Russian giant attracted crowds of visitors while the house of mystery provided plenty of thrills for the more curious seekers after knowledge.

Other Attractions Tonight

The educational exhibit was an added feature of the affair, visitors here being shown the method of making books and other modern methods of printing.

As an added attraction for the final presentation tonight several additional booths have been erected and one more side show.

Three members of the faculty and three students make up the central committee in charge of the carnival as follows: Principal C. M. Rohrbach, Misses Beardmore and Thoresen of the faculty and Nellie Haldeeman, Richard Roose and Raymond

POTTERS DISCUSS NEW WAGE SCALE

Wage Concession For Men Appears Certain As Delegates Meet.

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 19.—A wage concession for the men appeared virtually certain as delegates representing the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters and United States Potters' association went into joint conference again this morning to discuss terms for a new agreement in the general ware branch of the pottery industry, which has been in the throes of a strike for more than two months.

Both committees held separate meetings yesterday when the wheels were oiled for a speedy and amicable settlement of terms for a new agreement. There is harmony in the air and a satisfactory conclusion is expected in short order.

GAS FLUCTUATES, LISBON WORRIED

Users of gas in Lisbon have been apprehensive for the last four or five days of explosions or asphyxiation. Apparently without warning the gas supply fails and fires go out. Then the supply comes on again with the pipes open and the gas escapes in cellars or rooms filling the air with fumes. People all over town who use the gas report the conditions as general. Frequently fires that were left burning at night are out in the morning, with gas escaping from the pipes.

COPE GIVES WOMEN VIEWS ON POLICE

State Representative H. D. Cope expressed his disapproval of the state constabulary bill when he addressed members of the Book Club at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday afternoon. He stated, however, that he was strongly in favor of rural police protection and that he believed the bill could be so altered as to meet with more ready approval of the public in general.

Another feature of the club program was a reading by Mrs. H. E. Stiver. Mrs. Charles Haldi was elected to membership at this meeting.

Fairmount Crowded, Some Relief Sought

Jeanne Orville, agent for the state division of charities, came to Lisbon today and had a conference with Judge Lodge Riddle, Probation Officer John McShane and Humane Officer Edward Snyder relative to placing some of Columbiana county's wards in the Fairmount home, with a capacity for 190 children, now has 270 and conditions are such that relief is needed. Stark county is trying to secure homes for some of her wards and the same will be tried in this county.

GOLF CLUB HOUSE IS FURNISHED BY WOMEN MEMBERS

Comfortable Surroundings
Greet Members At Annual Meeting.

RE-ELECT OFFICERS FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Financial Report Reveals
Club Is In Excellent Condition.

When members of the Salem Golf club went to the clubhouse at the course two miles south of the city on the Lisbon rd Monday night for their annual meeting, they found the house cozy and attractively furnished in every detail.

For three months the women of the club and wives of members have been at work to provide the results that greeted the eyes of the members Monday night. They have painted the woodwork and floors, provided chairs, tables and other furniture and placed curtains. There are blue, red and green rooms and one wall has been removed to make a large assembly room. Fires were built in the fireplaces, locker rooms provided for men and women and other comforts of a club house.

Officers reported that $22,000 had been spent on the course last year and enough money remains in the treasury to meet expenses until next year's dues are collected. Dividend on the land company's stock also was paid.

Directors of the club, re-elected at this meeting, are: A. O. Silver, Les W. Atkinson, C. S. Carr, R. W. Campbell, C. C. Gibson, C. D. Harris, F. R. Pow, G. R. Deming, A. B. Haslam, J. H. Brian, W. H. Dunn, H. L. McCarthy, and H. C. Nelson. W. V. Beck was elected to the board as a representative from Lisbon and Nell McKee from Leetonia.

Later the board met and re-elected those officers: President, W. H. Dunn; vice president, G. K. Deming; secretary, C. D. Harris; treasurer, F. R. Pow.

Committee chairman reported progress and A. B. Haslam, chairman of the grounds committee, reported that the greens had been re-seeded and top-dressed and would be in excellent condition the coming summer.

Nearly 75 members attended this meeting and after the business session played cards and enjoyed other social diversions.

ENTERS SUIT FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

State Compensation Denied
Widow Of Man Injured
At Leetonia.

Mrs. Pearl Truxall, of Leetonia, widow of the late Norville Truxall, has appealed to the common pleas court from the ruling of the state industrial commission, which was to the effect that the deceased, who was killed last July, did not meet his death while in the course of his employment, and was therefore not entitled to participate in the State Workmen's Compensation fund.

Norville Truxall was injured July 13, while at his work at the plant of the Hanna Furnace company in Leetonia. He was so seriously injured that his death occurred soon after, and the widow soon after filed her claim for compensation with the State Industrial Commission. The commission denied the right of the deceased to participate in the fund on November 14.

MORGAN TO BUILD BIG GARAGE HERE

Frank Speidel has sold his lot of 88 feet frontage on Pershing ave, just west of the Lay property on the corner of Pershing and Penn, to Emmett Morgan of Leetonia.

Mr. Morgan will erect a modern garage and show room for C. W. Zimmerman, agent for Studebaker cars in Salem and surrounding territory. Work is to be started at once and will be rushed to completion.

This property was sold through the Kennedy agency.

County Home Inmates Will Get Big Treat

Superintendent and Mrs. Lyle Harris will follow their usual custom at the County Home and serve a regular Christmas dinner to the inmates there. There will be a hot chicken dinner with oranges, candy, nuts and popcorn, and the people of the county who have friends or acquaintances there are asked to remember them with a gift of some kind, or a remembrance if it is only a Christmas card. Too often people are sent to the home only to be forgotten, and if people only knew with what delight a card of remembrance is received by them at the holiday season, the mails at the institution would be crowded. The tragedy of it is a few are remembered, and others forgotten.

No Fundamental Change

If you will stir over Salem a bit and talk to some of our older citizens we venture to say nine out of 10 of them will openly declare that "boys don't have the good times now we did when we were young." It's a common belief among those whose hair has commenced to silver around the edges that the present-day youth is more intent on girl-chasing and money spending than was the case 20, 30 or 40 years ago, and that the real downright fun boys once enjoyed is a thing of the past.

We can't always agree with this argument, because we are forced to consider that conditions have changed and naturally our growing boys and girls are meeting only these new conditions. We are not satisfied today with the same things our fathers were satisfied with, such as horse and buggy instead of the auto; a gang plow instead of a tractor; a tallow candle instead of a modern lamp or an electric light. So why should we expect a boy to be satisfied with what we had to put up with when something more modern is right at his finger tips.

And it's true of our girls, too. Mother used to be satisfied with candy hearts with reading on them, or a sack of stick candy. That was because she didn't know anything about chocolates and ice cream soda and nut sundaes. We used to get a lot of joy out of a home-made kite. Today it takes a miniature airplane to please a boy of like age. When mother was a girl she joyed in the possession of a bright-colored yarn shawl. Daughter can't feel herself happy in anything but an expensive wool sweater. And so it goes. We haven't changed. And the same thing that youth now calls upon for amusement probably will seem mighty commonplace and crude to his boys 20 or 30 years from now.

Builders

AMBASSADOR HERRICK, ascending the pulpit of the American church in Paris, has preached a little sermon that it is good for Americans and Parisians to hear together. He finds the indomitable French people in their war-torn fields and shell-dismantled villages patiently toiling to rebuild, in the same heroic spirit pioneers of "the winning of the west" have shown in America—days that are not yet ended for Alaska or for many other regions in our broad domain—the stuff of which real men are made was shown under the inexorable duress of primitive conditions, when the planters, the herdsmen, the miners and trappers, the outposting members of the learned professions, were advancing the frontiers of civilization as the light of morning puts to rout the darkness.

We who come after the era of the first settlers, their fortitude and hardihood, find the inheritance ready to our hands and the rough places plain. What are we doing with that which they gave us? Are we to run it or ruin it? Our constructive problem in America, as Ambassador Herrick intimates, is in many ways at one with that of the builders over there. Out of their tremendous losses and the social tragedy they are setting us a luminous example. If the dispossessed peasants around about Ypres and Verdun, if the merchants of the cities (whose shops were demolished by the guns, can come back to the old places and reveal their dauntless high-heartedness in action, what excuse have we, in the midst of bounty, for quailing in the presence of the social, industrial, political complexities that now beset the onward, upward way of our America? There are "lights in the stubble" in the battlefields that are fast becoming farms again—there is a lesson to be learned from the undiscouraged folk of rural France as of those who fared westward in America half a century ago.

20 YEARS AGO

(Issue of Dec. 19, 1902.)

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shriver, this city, are now located at Jacksonville, Fla., where they will spend the winter on account of his health. Mrs. Eliza Cobbs, who has been seriously ill of pneumonia is reported some better.

The work of cleaning out the illegal liquor sellers in Alliance continues. Miss Katie Maurer, this city, and Kinsey Farmer, Teegarden, were married Wednesday evening by Rev. E. Dobberstein, at his home in Vine st.

Miss Lela Baker has gone to East Palestine, where she has accepted a position as stenographer.

A. S. Mackintosh, Damascus, is slowly recovering from the effects of a slight stroke of paralysis. Under the new law which takes effect Jan. 1 1903 no person can engage in the profession of embalming without a license granted by the state board of examiners.

Miss Lydia Davies, former trimmer at Eckstein's left this morning for Cleveland, where she will visit friends. The winter wheat crop is highly encouraging according to the crop report issued by the United States department of agriculture. The total acreage is given at 34,000,000 which is 2,000,000 acres in excess of last year.

Editors of the Alliance Review and the Alliance Leader have been appointed members of a special committee to investigate the pollution of Mahoning river water. Charles First, employee at the Buckeye Engine company plant, had his left foot hurt in an accident this morning. The toes were crushed and the entire foot was bruised.

The term of Probate Judge J. C. Boone will expire Feb. 8. He will be succeeded by J. A. Martin, Lisbon.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Common garden sage, brewed into heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug store, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger.

If the scale of the universe were reduced 6,000,000,000,000 times, the distance from the earth to the sun would be represented by one inch and the distance of one light year would be about one mile.

APPROVE MEASURE TO FINANCE SALE OF FARM PRODUCTS

Washington, Dec. 19.—The bill of Senator Norris to establish a $100,000,000 government corporation to finance sale of agricultural products, was ordered reported favorably by the senate agriculture committee.

It is estimated that $742,000,000 will be spent in the United States on highway construction during this calendar year.

agriculture relief legislation promises to center, would be brought into the senate in the near future and an attempt made to have it replace the administration cropping bill. The Norris proposal has not been given administration approval and Eugene Meyer, director of the war finance corporation told the senate banking committee that he was opposed to it. The agriculture committee voted a favorable report on the bill after interrupting its hearings on farmer relief, but the banking committee continued today to hear testimony regarding various proposals for expansion of agricultural credit.

It is estimated that $742,000,000 will be spent in the United States on highway construction during this calendar year.

SOME OLD YULETIDE BELIEFS

Season Supposed to Control the Destiny of Children Born at Gladstone Time.

AN OLD superstition says that it is lucky to be born on Christmas Day.

French peasants believe that in addition to being lucky Christmas Day babies have the gift of prophecy; while in Silesia there is a belief that a boy born on Christmas Day will become either a lawyer or a thief.

Among Vosges peasants, children born on Christmas Eve are supposed to be endowed with what is vulgarly termed "a good gift of the gab," while those born on Christmas Day are supposed to have less tongue and better reasoning powers. A daughter born on Christmas Day will grow up to be wise, witty, and virtuous.

A curious bequest for the benefit of Christmas Day babies was left by a man who died in 1915. By the terms of his will each child born in the testator's native town on December 25th receives five pounds as a birthday gift.

There are about 25,000,000 whites, Indians and Negroes and about 20,000,000 of mixed blood in South American countries.

OLD STACKPOLE

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

"The trouble is, mother," said William slowly, "that you have too much deadwood. It's had enough your running this darn boarding house when you could just as well come and live with me in the city."

"Well, maybe," agreed his mother mildly. "I'm sort of an easy mark, but when you come to know people, how hard you are and what misfortunes, well, 'tain't so easy to turn 'em out."

"I know, mother," went on William patiently. "Only, well, hang it, mother, that old Stackpole gets my goat. Hasn't done a stroke of work for years and—has he ever paid you a cent, mother?"

"Why, yes, for years he did!" exclaimed Mrs. Greeley triumphantly. "Up until lately, he's been real prompt."

"You must get rid of him somehow before I come down again," William uttered this ultimatum with determination. This run-down boarding house had long been a source of provocation and had played a very important factor in his love affair with Miss Kitty Benedict, pretty cashier in the big hardware store for which William was purchasing agent, delaying his declaration of love.

How could he ever take the graceful Kitty down to that environment of shabby has-beens and never-would-be's? What a contrast the girl would be to his mother, unnecessarily dowdy and plainly attired!

The annoyance to William was that such a condition was needless. His salary, coupled with the small income left his mother by his father, was sufficient to maintain the two of them in simple but wholesome comfort and even admit contemplation of a third in the ménage—if Kitty could be brought to consider such a thing.

Kitty, on the whole, had been rather discouraging; occasionally went out to dance or to the movies with William but never threw out any of those informal, "Drop round some night and we'll make fudge in the kitchen" invitations which young men welcome as signs of a desire to exhibit domesticity.

This time, on William's return from the country, he resolved to play the man and propose to Kitty.

William lingered some time in the vicinity of Kitty's cage before collecting sufficient courage to speak what was in his mind.

At last, "Kitty," he said desperately, "I've just got to see you alone somewhere, where we can talk comfortably by ourselves."

Now was Kitty's moment to say, "How about running up to the house?" Instead, she hesitated and fingered her bill file. "Well, where can we?" she asked at last.

"I didn't know—how about my calling tonight?"

There was a moment's silence. "All right," said Kitty at last. "You know my address? All right—around eight."

Curiously, William, prompt to the second, rang Kitty's bell. It was a very shabby little house, not at all the sort of setting one would have chosen for a girl of Kitty's pretty piquancy. From within, as Kitty opened the door without a word, issued a hubbub of sounds—noisy laughter, scraping of chairs, a phonograph.

"Mother's roomers," said Kitty. "Now you see how much chance we'd have of any privacy. They're a noisy lot, mostly actors from third rate theaters, half the time out of a job. The cluttered, crowded parlor, the smelly dining room—that's why I love the store so. It's big and clean!"

"Dear little girl," said William tenderly, "get your hat and coat and we'll go to the park. That's big and clean, too—and so is our love going to be."

A few short weeks and William and Kitty were married. A brief honeymoon and then William took his bride home to meet his mother. After the first greetings were over William managed an aside to Mrs. Greeley.

"Well, mother, I hope you haven't old Stackpole around as a boarder any more."

"N—no," said his mother nervously. "I haven't."

"How'd you manage to get rid of him?" he asked curiously.

"I'll—tell you later," and his mother vanished indoors, ostensibly to see about the mixing up of biscuits.

But that night as William smoked on the porch waiting the call to supper a familiar old figure came up the steps and sank into an old Morris chair as one who belonged there.

"Fine night—bit warm," he said amiably.

Old Stackpole! Rising, William sought his mother. "Thought you'd got rid of him!" he told her indignantly.

"I did!" said his mother, "as a boarder. You see, I—I married him and you wouldn't expect your—your father to pay board, now, would you dearie?"

Coat Tails to Sit On.

Those mysterious persons who decide when one shall wear a dinner jacket, and such like points of fastidiousness, are making a strong bid for the return of full evening dress for dining and theatergoing. But the dinner jacket will die hard. Middle-aged men seem to be returning with decelerity to their short coats. There seem to be no good of wearing coat tails one is just going to sit on them the evening.

LITTLE EXPECTED OF THIS SESSION

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO SEAT CONGRESSMEN WHEN ELECTED FAVORABLY REPORTED.

EXISTING SYSTEM ISN'T FAIR

Change in Date of Presidential Inauguration, Long Urged, May Be Brought About Eventually—Weather Is Argument in Its Favor.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington.—The present congress during this, its last session, probably will not do much beyond the passage of the appropriation measures and of a bill for the further liberalization of agricultural credits.

In the above sentence there is embodied the prediction of the leaders of both parties, although it is hardly necessary to say that some of the leaders simply feel that little is to be done, not caring to proclaim openly their feeling. There is, of course, hope against hope in some quarters that the Dyer anti-lynching bill will be passed; that the senate will smile favorably on ship subsidy, and that some other things can be done which it will be exceedingly difficult to do when the new congress, with its greatly reduced republican majority, shall take control of legislation.

The senate committee, to which was referred the proposed measure to be submitted to the people for a change in the Constitution which will put senators and representatives in their seats as soon as they are elected, instead of prolonging their terms until the March following the election, has reported the proposal to the senate unanimously. It is predicted in Washington that the states of the Union will be called upon before long to ratify such an amendment.

Present Condition Anomalous.

Republicans and Democrats alike are ready to admit that it is an anomalous condition which permits a congress whose party majority may have been defeated at the polls, to continue to legislate for some months after the people have repudiated its methods of legislation. Now, of course, this does not apply to the present situation, for the Republicans still have a majority in both house and senate. It is argued, however, by one faction within the Republican party that things which it proposes to do at the present short session will not meet with the sanction of the congress as it was elected in November. Therefore, some of the Republicans intimate that the condition today is almost what it would be if a Democratic congress had been elected.

It was the committee into whose keeping was committed the proposal for a change in the date of the inauguration, that reported favorably on the proposal for a constitutional amendment which would put congressmen in their seats as soon as they are elected. The inauguration date, March 4, always has been regarded as an unfortunate one by many men in public life, as well as by that considerable body of the citizenry which comes to Washington to see a successful candidate for the presidency inducted into office.

Woodrow Wilson desired that a change of this kind should be made. It seems possible that the date of the great ceremonies of inauguration may be changed eventually without interfering at all with the inauguration proper. In other words, a President can be sworn into office and take control of things on March 4, while the big parade and the ornate festivities generally can be postponed until a later period.

March 4 Weather Often Bad.

Weather conditions more than anything else have acted to help the plans of those who would like the inaugural festivities postponed until late April of every fourth year. Occasionally March is a terror in the city of Washington, and only occasionally does the early part of the month present a genial face with a warm blush in the cheeks.

Looking back into the history of inaugurations one finds that weather conditions of March 4 of inauguration years have been about equally balanced between severe cold and mildness, and storm and blue skies. When General Grant was inaugurated for his second term on March 4, 1872, the thermometer was below zero in this city.

Grover Cleveland was inaugurated President for one of his terms on a day that was something worse than frigid. The local hospital lists of Washington in the days following cold weather inaugurations always are lengthened.

Going away back into history, it is said that the exposure which William Henry Harrison suffered at the time of his inauguration hastened his death. Who has forgotten March 4, 1909, when William Howard Taft was inaugurated President? There was a blizzard that day. Not one line of telegraphic news was sent out of the capital city because every wire was down. The only way that the country learned that the inauguration had taken place was by means of a wireless dispatch which the operators succeeded in sending to Baltimore, from which city it was relayed to Philadelphia, and from there sent through the country.

Impulse Dodds' Christmas

by F.H. Sweet

OMMY Dodds, "Impulse Dodds," cattleman, was in Chicago, with his big sale over. And even in Chicago, where sight-seeing cattlemen were common, Impulse Dodds was a noticeable figure, with his six feet odd, free money ways, and almost perpetual smile.

He paused in front of a small, narrow store, whose one window was full of toys. Inside, the counter and shelves were packed with the same kind of goods.

"Just Santa," said Impulse, aloud. "Believe I'll go in."

He closed his fingers tightly and pushed open the door with his thumb, still extended.

"Put in his thumb," he grinned, "and—does he pull out a plum?"

In the shop were two men, the one in front of the counter loud-voiced and threatening. "Well," this one was finishing, as Impulse entered, "I'll give you just two more days to meet your bill, till the day after Christmas. If you don't pay me in full then, I will take possession."

As the man stalked out, Impulse raised his right foot and swung it back and forth thoughtfully.

"Can I show you anything, sir?" he asked a moment later, as Impulse turned to the counter with a half-regretful frown on his face, adding: "It's just as well you didn't do it, sir. He's a very vindictive man."

"That so? Then I sure wish I had. I don't generally hold back on things, but this city's getting me right scared. I've reined up unusual the last three days. Now 'bout the toys. That man's talk is so easy unraveled. I reckon you'll sell cheap?"

"At almost your own price, sir. There is only this one day to sell, and I can't hope to do enough. I've seen failure for a week past, though for a while I did hope to come out in condition to start again. Now what can I show you?"

"Well, not only one solitary thing in particular, I reckon," scanning the shelves judiciously. "They all look right enticing, and what I didn't buy would make me feel sorry to look at. What'll you take for the bunch?"

The storekeeper moved along the counter, trying to arrange his goods more attractively.

"Look around all you want to," he said amiably. "And there is an easy chair back yonder where you can sit and rest, if you like."

Impulse followed him. "No wonder you can't sell, if you treat all customers like me," he complained. "Now, see here," slapping a big roll of bills on the counter. "How

"How Much," Demanded Impulse. much? Remember there's only one day for selling Santa stuff.

"Do you mean business?" asked the shopkeeper, a sudden huskiness coming into his voice.

"How much?" "Fifteen hundred, if you mean the cost. But I warn you it's too late to sell much—"

"Oh, I'm sure a hustler down home," cheerfully, "and I've a hunch I can move Santa goods tolerable brisk the day before the day. Now let's see, fifteen, with a fair per cent for profit and a little for good will makes it just two thousand. There you are," peeling off another bill or two, and then replacing the roll in his pocket. "Now you've got to throw in your services as clerk for the rest of the day."

"But I can't—" began the dazed shopkeeper. But Impulse was at the door.

"Back right soon," he called. "Be getting the goods ready to handle quick."

Outside, Impulse glanced up and down the street. Half a dozen urchins were playing on the sidewalk, two or three were hanging behind a dray, a newsboy was crying his papers. Other youngsters were dimly seen among pedestrians and street vehicles. Impulse put two fingers into his mouth and blew a blast that would cover a mile on the prairie. At the same time the other hand was coming from his pocket with all the coins his fingers could grasp. These were tossed into the air. By the time they had ceased jingling on the sidewalk, fifty more or less grimy little hands were clutching for them.

"Now, you bunch," called Impulse. "Just listen to me for a minute. Who's the most no 'count boy in this neighborhood?"

"Crawfish Bobby," answered a voice promptly. "He never stands treat, and carries every cent home to his ma'am."

"And the most unpopular girl?" There was a short silence, then several of the boys lifted.

"Raggy Sally," said one of them. "She's Peanut Seller Bet's girl, and when we boys throw mud she flirts like a wildcat."

"And gives all of you a mighty good drubbing, I hope," commented Impulse. "Now, boys, the two who bring Crawfish Bobby and Raggy Sally to me get a four-bit piece each, and let them they'll get another for regular. Now, the lot of you come back, for the show isn't half over."

Ten minutes later, Crawfish Bobby and Raggy Sally stood in front of him. Impulse placed a hand upon a shoulder of each.

"These two are going to be little Santas and give you all a right nice present by and by," he called to the rapidly increasing crowd of urchins. "Mind, you'll owe it in part to them. Now stamper into the streets and alleys of the neighborhood and corral every boy and girl you can find, and bring 'em here. Just an hour from now this store'll commence to give out presents, and you'll all get one. Nobody will be missed. Hit the street now, the whole lot of you except these two."

"Mr. Santa Claus, I believe, sir," She began.

In an hour, the door was thrown open and the rush began, with half a thousand whooping youngsters to make the assault. It was short work, the pillaging of the store, and in forty minutes all was over. And then, just as the hilarious present bearers were scattering into every street and alley, an automobile swerved out from the street traffic and stopped at the curb. In it were an old gentleman and a lady and several girls. The gentleman motioned some of the urchins to the side of the car, where they were questioned as to the extraordinary spectacle. Then a few words passed between the occupants of the car, after which one of the girls alighted and came to the store. Crawfish Bobby and Raggy Sally were just outside the door, with their arms full.

"You're the little Santa's," smiled the young lady, as she took their hands, "and I just know you had a big time." Then she entered the store and went straight to Impulse.

"Mr. Santa Claus, I believe, sir?" she began.

"Why—er—no," stammered Impulse, turning red, "only—er—just as a sort of advance agent, named Impulse—I mean Tommy Dodds."

The girl broke into a ringing laugh. "Impulse! I like that," she cried. "Now, Impulse Dodds, have you any definite arrangement for the Christmas holidays—any binding engagement, I mean?"

"No-o, nothing except to tramp sidewalks and say 'Howdy' to every stranger who'll let me."

"Good! Then there's nothing in the way of our invitation. You see, we're having a houseful of company for the holiday week, and papa and mamma suggested that I ask you. Papa owns a ranch out West, and he says he knows how a stranger must feel in a city at Christmas time, and he thinks a man who can do what you've just done will certainly be an acquisition to our party. And I may add we all feel the same way. You'll come? There is room in our machine."

Impulse nodded. He looked words fitting to the occasion. A week at a house party! Gee! wouldn't that be sure to tell the boys at the ranch. Start back the day after Christmas? Who? He? No, sirree! That would be rank foolishness. Not till the last gun was fired.

So he walked out to the automobile with the girl, with never a thought of the emptied store behind, or of the beaming, misty-eyed man who could now stock up again without the baleful skeleton of a creditor to glare at him over the goods. And as Dodd entered the automobile, one of the girls afterwards declared that she heard him murmur, "And pulled out a plum," though she could not understand why. It was just one of his funny ways.

Leonard Is Busy With Cafe, Puts Off Challengers

New York, Dec. 19.—Following in the ancient footsteps of Tom Shockey, Jim Jefferies and others, Benny Leonard, our esteemed lightweight champion, has opened a popular cafe, just off Broadway and, according to rumor is doing his training there.

He calls it the Ringside club and is pleased to note that the place has become a rendezvous for that particular type of Broadway habitue who goes home only for change of linen, when needed.

Leonard is a busy man these days. What with elevating the drama and running a popular club for paying guests, he cannot find time to do justice to the box fighting business and Messrs. Charley White and Lew Tendler are forced to cool their semi-championship heels while awaiting his pleasure. From all indications there will be no bout for the lightweight championship until such time as the champion gets around to it.

The contenders have recourse to the boxing commission, which issues manifestos upon request, demanding recognition of legitimate challenges.

But the plausible Mr. Leonard has a perfectly good "out." When a challenger actually becomes pestiferous, he calls upon his dentist. The latter issues a professional moan concerning the deplorable condition of Mr. Leonard's gums.

From all accounts Benny has no intention of entering the ring again until the outdoor season when crowds are great and gates are wide.

A Toast to Bread
TRY THEM—CLEAN—PURE—WHOLESOME

Here is to the backbone of civilization—BREAD. It satisfies when nothing else can satisfy. Good, sweet, nutritious HOME-BAKED bread comes like a ministering angel to put courage and spirit into the hearts of men. Arrayed in no delicious frostings or tempting garnishments, bread yields the sceptre in its regal way. Companion of prince and peasant, at home in cabin and castle, it is, indeed, builder of men and of nations—our daily bread.

A Gift That's Remembered

Shoes are a splendid sort of a family gift, but to be really Christmasy they should be very nice—a little extra than the person might choose for themselves. If you select satin colonials for Ruth be sure that they are ornamented with attractive buckles. And instead of the school shoes that sister will need anyway put patent leather slippers under the tree. It is the same with mother and dad—make it an "extra" pair.

The Long Distance Telephone

By Christopher
G. Hazard

IN THESE days, when wires stretch from pole to pole and wireless messages fill the air like auroras, Santa Claus is not left without hints and suggestions as to the desires of his beneficiaries. They come in from all quarters and tax even the resources of his prodigious spirit. It used to take time and pains to send letters to his headquarters, but now anybody can call him up in a moment or send a wish out into the space that tingles with electricity, that swift and willing servant of joy, full of light, and heat, and power.

So, when Tim had suggested a letter to Santa, Maggie had replied, "Why don't you use the tell-em-phone?" and Nora had said that wireless was better. "Sure, he's too far away for them things," objected Mrs. McCann. "No, not if he was ten thousand miles away," said Mr. McCann. "Mike Hennessy sint word to his father in Australia, and him as far as that, and look at him now, wid his motion car—that was the answer he got!" "Well, I'll try it, anyway," said the half-convinced Tim.

But the line was busy. Moreover, it was likely to be busy for the next two weeks, Central said, which rather discouraged the boy, but at the same time gave him a bright idea: Why not put up his own wireless telephone? Then he could ask for all that he wanted!

The neighbors, and especially the neighbors' boys, were much interested in Tim's experiment as it progressed. The stock of materials was limited, but with friendly help the two wires and the rest of a simple apparatus were contrived and the boys imagined that they heard things as they listened in. They imagined, too, that there was an ear at the other end of everywhere as they were sending out their expressions of desire. Certainly it was well noised about in the neighborhood that McCann's boy was scientifically hopeful for himself and family; even the particulars of his aspirations were understood.

Among others, old man McKeefrey heard the news. McKeefrey was a peculiar old chap. He lived alone in a rather dilapidated house on the edge of the village and had little to do with anybody. Once in a while he would give his views on the one subject that employed his thoughts to an evening company at the corner store, but no one paid much attention to them. His one idea was that charity began at home, and the popular opinion that in McKeefrey's home it stayed there. There was also a general opinion that in McKeefrey's home it was not very much needed. The old man was not much on dress and he seldom went anywhere or seemed to indulge in any of the non-necessities or luxuries of the world and had compelled fortune to yield him some of his favors. A dishonest partner and something that went wrong in a love affair had embittered him, however, and caused his misanthropical retirement into his useless obscurity. Reacting against society, he had more and more turned his thoughts inward and inclosed himself in a shell of selfishness. He was the sole inhabitant of his little world and charity was his servant; the only needs he really believed in were his own needs; to their supply and protection his means were consecrated.

But now McKeefrey was strangely interested. Something of old sympathy and youthful feeling stirred in his crusty heart. He was touched by the thought of boyish anticipations and afraid for the disappointments that he foresaw. He remembered that once his own heart had been warm and hopeful, that he had made effort for good and sent out dreams into the future. There came back to him a sense of the bitter and blighting frost that had chilled and deadened him, and there sighed in his soul a faint hope that happiness might visit him again in his effort to bestow it upon others. It seemed a sweet and desirable thing to him to honor the faith that was causing Tim to reach out into the world for a blessing.

So it was that there were signs of strange activity about McKeefrey's house and mysterious arrivals at Mc-

Cann's house. And when, on Christmas morning, the McCanns awoke to the very liberal response that Santa Claus had made to their specifications, Mrs. McCann's pessimism was retired in confusion. "I wouldn't have believed it," she said, "that old McKeefrey could be that changed, the cratur; that he could be a Santy Claws, the omadhaun. It do beat th' devil. It is more wonderful than all your phones and wires. These do be great times we do be livin' in. I niver thought electricity could go that fur."

It was Tim's first step in science, but he went a good deal farther than that. Now he can put you into real communication with all the rest of the world, if you like. But he owes it all to that change of heart that came to old Mr. McKeefrey.

As for the old man—he has never been able to get back into his old house and hard shell. Charity has taken him out into a large and happier world!

BOOZE VIOLATIONS ANNOY UNCLE SAM

ADMINISTRATION, FROM PRESIDENT DOWN, INSISTS LAW MUST BE ENFORCED.

EQUIPMENT NOW INADEQUATE

Real Enforcement of Prohibition Must Depend on Aid Which Unofficial Citizens Give the Officers of the Government.

By EDWARD B. CLARK
Washington.—It needs neither a sharp eye nor a sharp ear to learn that the administration is concerned because of the difficulties which are besetting the agents of the law in enforcing the statutes relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors.

From the White House have come words about it, and from the offices of the cabinet officers have come other words. It makes no difference whether the President of the United States or the members of his cabinet think or do not think that the laws should be moderated to the admission of light wines and beers as beverages. The question is not one of wishing this or wishing that. It is a question of enforcing the law as it stands. A President is the chief executive of the United States, and the chief executive is one whose business it is to execute the laws.

It probably is true that nothing like so much liquor is being consumed in the United States today as was the case six years ago, but it also doubtless is true that the violations of the law, occurring as they do in the great news centers of the country, are made known quickly to the people and, because of the density of the population in these centers, the accumulation of evidence of the law violations makes the lawlessness loom in the public eye.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon believes, it is said, that a great army of men committed to the work would be needed to obtain a proper enforcement, and that then it would be effective only with the co-operation of the great body of citizenship. It is held in the Treasury department that while the prohibition office is doing effective work so far as it can, it still would fall short of accomplishing an effective check to the making, sale and use of intoxicants if the force were four times as large as it is today.

Law Must Be Enforced.
There is no intention or thought on the part of any member of the administration to suggest that prohibition is not a good thing, or to suggest that it is a good thing. The entire thought on the subject is that the law is on the statute books and while it is there it should be enforced, no matter how much money it costs to enforce it nor how great the difficulties which lie in the way.

There seems to be a feeling that if the people of the United States want to have light wines and beers, or desire that the amendment shall be repealed, they can find eventually the means to accomplish their end, but again this is beside the present point. For the thing is simply that there is a law, and that the government officers are sworn to enforce it—and this with the present equipment of men and means it is difficult to do.

So the laws are on the statute books, and the President and other officials of government desire that they shall be enforced, but it is said bluntly enough in nearly every nook and corner of officialdom here that real enforcement must depend upon the aid which citizens who are not officials of the government shall give to the cause.

Haynes Not Dismayed.
It is said that Commissioner Haynes, who is the director of the enforcement of prohibition laws, is not at all discouraged because of the opposition offered to his work, and of the constant violations of the statutes. Some of the field directors of the work say that popular support for the prohibition amendment is increasing; that home brewing is largely a thing of the past, and that moonshining is dying out.

It costs a lot of money to enforce the anti-liquor laws. The friends of prohibition say the amount saved to the people of the United States because liquor selling is illegal and supplies cannot readily be obtained, is so great that the amount spent to enforce the laws dwindles into insignificance. The fact remains, however, that in many parts of the country the law is being violated flagrantly, and it seems from the official point of view that nothing can put a stop to the illegalities in the case except a great increase in the number of law enforcement officers.

One grave thing is that men who are charged with the duty of enforcing the laws think that the people of the United States are derelict in their duty in not helping the executive branch of the government to carry out the will of the people as expressed by their representatives in congress in this matter of prohibition.

Nation's Crops For Year Valued At Seven Billion

Washington, Dec. 19.—The nation's crops this year are worth $7,572,890,000 based on their farm value as of Dec. 1, the department of agriculture announced today in its final crop report of the year. Their value is $1,842,978,000 more than last year's crops, reflecting improvement in prices for farm products prevailing now as compared with a year ago and increased production in some crops.

This year's farm production is worth about the same as that of 1915 but is lower than 1920 by amount $1,500,000,000 and lower than any year since 1915, except last year. It is only a little more than half as much as the record-value year of 1919.

Record production was made this year in rye, white potatoes, sweet potatoes and hay. Other bumper crops were rice, with the third largest production; tobacco, with the fourth largest crop in history; wheat, with the fifth largest production, and corn, with its seventh largest crop.

Cotton, this year, is the fourth most valuable crop of that staple ever grown, although a small crop in point of production.

Corn, as usual, is the country's most valuable crop, being worth this year $700,000,000 more than last year with a total value of $1,909,287,000. Cotton stands second with $1,368,517,000, and hay is third with $1,331,679,000. Wheat was valued at $864,139,000 standing as fourth most valuable crop of the country.

Hazel Baker and George O. Baker

Mrs. Lottie Clark

George O. Baker of Oakland, Cal., tried to kill himself when pretty Mrs. Lottie Clark a divorcee, jilted him. He left a note blaming himself for wrecking her home, adding: "A man who steals another man's wife must surely pay." His daughter, Hazel, who had lost track of him, rushed to the hospital and aided in nursing him back to health, during the divorcee ever to come near him.

The Squirrels' Christmas

by Martha B. Thomas

"MY DEAR," said Mrs. Squirrel to her husband on Christmas morning. "do you realize that we have absolutely nothing in the cupboard?"

Mr. Squirrel stroked his whiskers and gave a thoughtful frown to his tail. "You remember that yesterday morning we gave those shiftless Chatter-Reds the very last nut we had," went on Mrs. Squirrel, putting her paws in her apron pockets (a very bad sign, I assure you; it meant that something was going to be done, and done quickly).

Mr. Squirrel went on stroking his whiskers. This seemed the only reply he could muster. He knew the facts of the case as well as his wife. Hadn't he invited the Chatter-Reds in? Hadn't he felt sorry for them because they looked so cold and hungry? Didn't he know that all fall, when the nuts were thickest, the Chatter-Reds had frolicked instead of getting in their winter supply? Didn't he caution them a hundred times, and hadn't they been rather saucy about it? They had! and yet, the day before Christmas they looked so forlorn he couldn't bear it. How they had lived as long as they had was something he did not like to think about. So in they trooped, five of them! They said very little and their noses quivered expectantly. The youngest of them, Charlie Chatter-Red, began to whimper. They could not stop him. And at last he said it right out loud. He said, and the tears rolled down his little cheeks like marbles spilled out of a boy's pocket, "I'm so hungry! I haven't had a thing to eat for two days!" And then he buried his head in his mother's lap and howled. It was all very sad. Mr. Squirrel had a consultation with his wife. They went in a corner to talk it over. When you yourself have just one nut left the day before Christmas, it takes a long time to decide to give it away. And one of the reasons that they had just one nut left was the fact that for some weeks past they had been helping these same shiftless Chatter-Reds! But Mrs. Squirrel was kind in spite of her sharp tongue, and she said that she supposed it was their Christian duty to help out into seventy times seven! So the last nut, a fine, fat one it was too, was brought forth. Mr. Chatter-Red almost bowed himself in two with gratitude and all the little Chatter-Reds danced about like Indians. They whirled up so much dust in Mrs. Squirrel's living room that every one began to sneeze. At last they went home. And Mr. and Mrs. Squirrel stood and looked at one another. But they said nothing at all.

And here it was Christmas and nothing in the cupboard!

"At least we can be thankful that we have no children," said Mr. Squirrel. "They won't have to go hungry on Christmas day."

Mrs. Squirrel had nothing but a snort in answer to this. Mr. Squirrel crossed the room and stood looking out of the window. The landscape was not very cheerful—gray sky, bare trees and a cold wind that made one shiver just to hear it. A Merry Christmas indeed! Mrs. Squirrel still had her paws in her apron pockets. She seemed to be thinking very hard. The harder she thought the more she cocked her head on one side. She actually seemed in danger of bending it so far it would break off. Then the idea came. Back snapped her head! Out came her hands from her apron pockets! Over to Mr. Squirrel she marched and nudged him with her elbow. "My dear," she said, "I have thought of something!"

"I'm So Hungry."

"What is it?" demanded Mr. Squirrel, whirling about.

"Put on your best coat, polish up your shoes, take your silver-headed cane and we'll go for a walk on Christmas morning!"

"But Sabrina," (that was Mrs. Squirrel's name) he protested, "I really can't see what taking a walk has to do with getting anything to eat."

"You begin to get on your coat and shoes, and I'll tell you," answered Mrs. Squirrel.

She whisked about like a girl. You would not have believed she could be so spry. While she was tying her bonnet under her chin she told her plan to Mr. Squirrel.

"Sandy," (that was Mr. Squirrel's name) "the children living in the big house across the road always have a stocking full of good things on Christmas morning. I have seen them come out and scatter crumbs to the birds and the bits of suet on the twigs of trees. Perhaps if we went walking by they would throw us some nuts. We don't care to beg, but it is only fair that they who have so much and are so kind-hearted should spare us a little on Christmas morning."

Mr. Squirrel thought this an excellent plan, and gave his shoes such an extra polishing that they nearly put his eyes out.

It all happened just as they had hoped. When they approached the big house across the road, there were the children outdoors scattering crumbs and grain. One boy was climbing a tree with a bit of suet tied to a string in his hand. There was a good deal of shouting and laughing going on, and to tell the truth the squirrels were a little timid. But when one is hungry, it does not pay to be afraid.

As soon as the children caught sight of them they shouted louder than ever. "Oh, oh!" they cried, "see Mr. and Mrs. Squirrel! How nice they look! Let's give them some nuts!"

And if you will believe me, those generous boys and girls that lived in the house across the road poured out such bags of nuts and goodies that Busy the Rest of the Morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Squirrel were busy the rest of the morning taking them home. And they asked the Chatter-Reds to join them and fill up their harder, too!

So every one had a Merry Christmas and Mrs. Squirrel did not have to put both hands in her apron pockets for months and months!

Christmas Inconsistency

(C. 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

TWO men were finishing their Christmas shopping late one Christmas eve.

"Let's call a taxicab," said one. "We have so many bundles and it is starting to rain."

A little boy offered to get them one. He only had to go a few steps before he found one. And he held the door open wide for the two men as he had seen carriage starters and automobile starters do.

He had been looking for odd jobs that evening. His Christmas money was not very much, and he did want to get just a few Christmas presents to give away. He had already made some. If he could only get ten cents now he would have enough. That would buy his mother's present. He wanted to get her a pink carnation. He had seen such beauties, and they were ten cents apiece.

One of the men paid no attention to him. The other fumbled at his pocket. "Here, don't be silly, you'll give the child bad ideas," said his friend. "He really didn't do anything. He will think he can beg for anything. That's a bad influence you're exerting," he muttered on, as the man who had fumbled at his pocket drew forth a shiny ten-cent piece and gave it to the boy, whose pale face and dark eyes lighted up in joy.

Later they stopped in at a restaurant to have something to eat. The man who had reprieved the other for the ten-cent tip to the small boy handed the waiter a large tip in advance, which made the waiter fawning in his attentions.

"We'll get better service," he explained, "and then, too, it's Christmas time."

But the friend who had been reprieved said: "You don't think you're exerting a bad influence by any chance, do you?"

And the boy bought the carnation and went home, successful and happy, but the waiter snubbed the next customer because he failed to get an exorbitant tip.

Raisin Nut Gems.

Two cupsful flour, 2 teaspoonful baking powder, ¾ teaspoonful salt, 2 tablespoonfuls sugar, ½ cupful raisins, ¼ cupful walnut meats, 1 well-beaten egg, 2 tablespoonfuls melted butter or shortening.

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Add raisins and nuts cut in pieces. Add milk and beaten egg and mix well. Stir in butter. Pour into greased gem pans and bake in moderate oven 30 to 35 minutes. This makes about 12 gems.

If water were 100 per cent pure it would not carry an electric current any better than glass.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Physician's Discovery Safely Reduces It To Normal and Dizzy Spells Disappear

If your blood pressure is too high you cannot pass a life insurance examination.

Perhaps you don't know whether you have this trouble or not, but if you have occasional dizzy spells, shortness of breath, pains in the head, hot flashes, are nervous, moody or don't sleep well, your blood pressure is probably higher than it ought to be even if you don't realize it.

Norma, the prescription of a Buffalo physician, reduces high blood pressure and when this result is accomplished all the ailments caused by this abnormal condition will quickly disappear. Bennett's drug store and reliable druggists everywhere have a steady demand for NORMA—it is purely vegetable and contains nothing harmful.

Sleeping in church used to be such a common habit that men had to be employed to walk about during the services and wake up the sleepers who had fallen asleep. In the 17th and 18th centuries money was often left for this purpose.

LAFOLLETTE MEET ROUSES INTEREST

CONFERENCE OF RADICALS OR PROGRESSIVES STUDIED
VERY CLOSELY.

THIRD PARTY MAY BE RESULT

Group Will Hold Balance of Power in Next Congress, but Conservatives Hope to Win by Concessions in Farm Legislation.

By EDWARD B. CLARK
Washington.—The conference of senators and representatives of a certain political and economic habit of mind which was called by Senator Robert M. LaFollette, has come to an end.
The conservatives in the senate call this a conference of radicals, although they do not so call it out loud. The men who took part in the conference with their followers call it a convention of progressives. The country will know what to call this conference when the fruits of it have made themselves manifest.

The intention of the conference was to outline legislation which would be acceptable to the members of what more or less loosely have been called the congressional blocs. One end and aim of the meeting was to define measures which would materially aid the agricultural elements in the United States. Other aims of the conference were directed to the accomplishment of legislation along many different lines.

There were others than senators and representatives present at the meeting called together by Mr. LaFollette.
There were some governors of states there, and there were some men who, not holding any office, are in general sympathetic with the plans of the garnering. Senator LaFollette specifically has denied that he even so much as suggested that the idea of the meeting was to form a third party.

May Result in Third Party.
There are Republicans and Democrats in congress who say the fact that the conference was bipartisan in its composition tends to show that the ultimate intention is to found a third party. They point out that while some of the legislation which is proposed by the attendants at the conference is of a kind which conservative-minded men in a general way can indorse, there also is some of it to which neither Republicans nor Democrats of the older schools of politics can give adherence for a moment. Some of the conservative ones of both parties believe that the inevitable outcome of the present groupings in the parties is a third political organization.

The next congress possibly, even probably, may be called to meet in extra session next spring. It is virtually assured today that the senators and representatives who have just been holding their conference under the leadership of Mr. LaFollette will hold the balance of power in the next congress. Most of the men who attended the meeting are Republicans in politics, or at any rate they were elected to office on the Republican ticket. This means that if they join together to prevent the passage of legislation which the majority of the Republicans in the house or senate shall demand, they will be able with the assistance of the Democrats to prevent the passage of almost anything to which they object.

The conservative and semi-conservative Republicans in house and senate have taken full note of the doings of the conference, and they also have studied well the future. Already the conservatives have considered ways and means of meeting the situation.
The chances seem to be that the congress, either at this winter's session or as soon as a new body shall meet, will pass legislation for the benefit of the agricultural communities which will be far in advance of any legislation thus far adopted.

May Win by Concessions.
It seems to be the view of conservative Republicans that if great concessions are made in the matter of agricultural credits and in some other matters, quite a number of the senate and house men who attended the progressive or radical (as you will) conference will refuse to go with other conference members into fields of legislation which are new and which the semi-conservative call dangerous. In other words, the conservative-minded ones think that by yielding on certain matters they can hold the Republican majority safe for much legislation to which the administration is pledged and to which some of the conference members are opposed.

The Republicans and Democrats in both house and senate have been looking over the lists of the names of the men who attended the conference of December 1 and 2. It already is said in Washington that the conservatives have a list of the names of conference attendants who they think will decline to "stay put" on all matters which the conference considered, and who will content themselves with sustaining the conference pleas for an additional strengthening of agricultural legislation.

It seems to be true today that the sharpest political interest in the conference is to be found in the possibility that a third party movement may come out of it. Senator Borah said not long ago that a third party seemed to be either a necessity or at any rate a certainty of the immediate future.

U. S. PROCEEDING WITH CAUTION IN EUROPEAN MUDDLE

Washington, Dec. 19.—Out of the maze of rumors and reports of new American moves in Europe—most of which met with emphatic official denial—it became increasingly evident here today that the United States is proceeding with extreme caution in the evolution of any schemes designed to settle the vexing questions of reparations and repayment of war debts.

Thus far it was revealed in official quarters today the American government has not actually injected itself into the delicate and highly controversial state of affairs abroad.
What has been done to date, it was learned authoritatively is to put forth some informal queries in the Allied capitals as to whether American good offices are desired by all the parties of the existing situation.

It is not yet certain anything will come of the cautious moves made to date. On the other hand the belief is held by some of President Harding's advisers that early in the new year America will re-enter Europe in the capacity of a neutral referee of the reparations controversy.

From authoritative sources it has been learned that the following steps have been taken in the past few weeks.

The German government has informally approached this state department with a suggestion that if the reparations situation continues as at present a catastrophe is certain in Europe not later than next spring.

The German government suggested America take the lead in proposing to the Allied governments the formation of an international economic situation and then agree upon a maximum figure of reparations that Germany can pay and still keep her head above water.

Without making any commitments one way or the other the American government deemed it wise to take some informal soundings in the Allied capitals as to how such a proposal coming from America, a disinterested party, might be received abroad.
